The Rise and Fall of the Catskills and the Comedians Who Made It Famous

Tuesday, October 24, 2023, at 1:00 pm

Bring your own lunch!

Drinks, snacks, and desserts will be served.

Mort Segal started working in the Catskills in 1943 as a busboy and then assistant salad maker! At age 17, he went to work for his father Jack Segal in booking entertainment for the resorts. The business grew into the largest booking agency in the Catskills. On any Saturday night, there would be over 120 shows using more than 150 entertainers. Mort was at the center of it all. He even roomed with Buddy Hackett, was friends with Joan Rivers, and knew hundreds of other stars of vaudeville, stage, and screen.

The history is interesting, the stories personal and funny. They're first-hand stories that will bring back memories of an era that no longer exists, from a guy who still does!

We will also celebrate October Birthdays
